High-quality early care and education (ECE) is proven to dramatically improve a child’s opportunities for a better future while offering parents greater job stability and overall economic security.

The Economic Impact
Access to affordable, high-quality child care can increase parental labor force participation and family economic stability. However, widespread problems finding and paying for child care adversely affect both state and national economies. As a direct result of child care issues, the national economy loses $122 billion annually in the form of lost earnings, productivity, and revenue. In California: The estimated annual economic impact of the infant-toddler child care crisis: $17B.

There are several early learning programs that provide working families with access to high-quality, affordable ECE opportunities, but currently the demand for care far outweighs the supply, and funding constraints leave many eligible children unserved. Each of these programs has its own eligibility requirements, purpose, and service delivery model. Together they form a mixed-delivery system that supports parental choice and aims to meet children's individual needs.

Spotlight: ECE Successes in California

COVID-19 Relief:
Throughout the pandemic, there was strong bipartisan support for federal relief funding to keep the child care sector afloat.
- As a result, 50,115 child care programs in California received support, impacting up to 311,500 children.\(^{41}\)
- These funds also allowed states to demonstrate what would be possible when equipped with additional resources. Funds have been used to support and stabilize the workforce through wage bonuses. Eligible early educators could receive a one-time payment of $600. Funds have also been used to increase reimbursement rates for providers.

Preschool Development Grant Birth Through Five (PDG B-5):
PDG B-5 is a competitive federal grant designed to improve states’ early childhood systems. In their 2023 planning grant application, among other uses, California noted that they would use funding to:
- Provide training for more ECE coaches, which will expand professional development opportunities, supporting sustainable workforce capacity building efforts.
- Increase the diversity and capacity of the infant-family and early childhood mental health workforce, including developing and delivering training, and conducting individualized needs assessments and mentorship sessions.
