High-quality early care and education (ECE) is proven to dramatically improve a child’s opportunities for a better future while offering parents greater job stability and overall economic security.

The Economic Impact

Access to affordable, high-quality child care can increase parental labor force participation and family economic stability. However, widespread problems finding and paying for child care adversely affect both state and national economies. As a direct result of child care issues, the national economy loses $122 billion annually in the form of lost earnings, productivity, and revenue. In Washington: The estimated annual economic impact of the infant-toddler child care crisis: $3.5B.

There are several early learning programs that provide working families with access to high-quality, affordable ECE opportunities, but currently the demand for care far outweighs the supply, and funding constraints leave many eligible children unserved. Each of these programs has its own eligibility requirements, purpose, and service delivery model. Together they form a mixed-delivery system that supports parental choice and aims to meet children’s individual needs.

Spotlight: ECE Successes in Washington

COVID-19 Relief:
Throughout the pandemic, there was strong bipartisan support for federal relief funding to keep the child care sector afloat.
- As a result, 6,850 child care programs in Washington received support, impacting up to 183,700 children.
- These funds also allowed states to demonstrate what would be possible when equipped with additional resources. Funds have been used to stabilize and support the workforce, including through increasing wages and other recruitment and retention activities. A minimum of 10% of ARPA funding was required to go towards supporting the early care and education workforce. Depending on estimated worker units, awards range from $9,000 to $42,000.

Preschool Development Grant Birth Through Five (PDG B-5):
PDG B-5 is a competitive federal grant designed to improve states’ early childhood systems. In their 2023 planning grant application, among other uses, Washington noted that they would use funding to:
- Collaborate with partners to integrate Washington State’s Paid Family and Medical Leave benefit with Help Me Grow, the statewide referral system.
- Partner with tribal and migrant parents and caregivers and Family, Friends, and Neighbor providers to develop new Play & Learn Groups that are culturally and linguistically attuned to reach marginalized parents and children.
